

If you want to give your loved one an awesome upcycled Valentine's Day gift, check out these top ideas from EarthFriendlyTip.com

Pine Cone Roses

Instead of giving your sweetheart flowers that will just die in a few weeks, you can use pine cones, paint, and glitter to give them bright and colorful pine cone roses they can enjoy throughout the year.

Painted Clay Pot

If you have some old clay pots stacked around your garden shed, you can turn them into these adorable upcycled painted clay pots with some paint and glitter. You can then stick treats and goodies inside for a lovely gift.

Plastic Bag Flower Earrings

Rather than throw away any plastic bags you still have at home, you can use them to make these cute plastic bag flower earrings. They're easy to create, and you can make them different colors depending on what type of bags you have.

Earring Holder

If you decide to create one of those upcycled earrings and you want to make the present even more special, you can put together this DIY earring holder. All you need is some wood, some hooks, and some wine corks.

Plastic Valentine's Day Hearts

If you're reducing your plastic use at home and need a way to reuse those old plastic containers that you no longer want, these plastic Valentine's Day hearts are a great upcycled gift idea. They're fun to create and very pretty. You can make them with the classic red and pink colors, or you can customize them with your sweetheart's favorite colors.

Marbled Nail Polish Mugs

If you have some plain white mugs sitting around, you can jazz them up and make them into the ideal Valentine's Day gift by following these easy steps to make marbled nail polish mugs.

Wine Cork Trivet

Another excellent upcycled Valentine's Day gift to consider if you have a collection of leftover corks is this wine cork trivet. Not only is this gift really cute, but it's also super handy to have in the kitchen.

Heart Bookmark

If your sweetheart likes to read, they'll be thrilled with this heart bookmark as a Valentine's Day gift. To create this thoughtful and lovely gift, you only need some recycled cardboard, old artwork, ribbon, and glue.

Felt Conversation Heart

Your young sweethearts will love these felt conversation hearts. They're soft and adorable. Best of all, they're easy to make by upcycling scraps of felt.

Dish Bird Feeder

If you have a loved one who enjoys spending time in the garden, this upcycled dish bird feeder will make a wonderful gift. All you need to do is gather some old dishes or glassware, copper tubing, and adhesive.

Paper Heart Garland

This paper heart garland not only makes a fun Valentine's Day gift, but it's also a great way to decorate for the holiday. If you use one of the eco-friendly toilet papers that come wrapped in tissue paper instead of plastic, you can easily upcycle the tissue paper to make the garland.

Happy Valentine's Day!